FOREWORD

The yearbook of Alabama College came into its present title in 1940 when, after many a campus skirmish, the Technala was re-christened Montage. "Montage," according to the cutters' dictionary means " . . . a composite photograph obtained by arranging several photographs . . . the dialogue—in a flowing continuity that will produce the desired effect on the audience."

In the spirit of its name, the '47 Montage presents a montage of life at Alabama College: a cross-section of classes, administration, athletics, organizations; a fragment of campus activities, beauty, talent; a glimpse of students enjoying the present to the fullest and looking to the future with confidence; a kaleidoscopic view of the gay and happy days of '46-'47.

DEDICATED TO . .

One who is a credit to her profession and an invaluable member of the college community; who is constantly in demand to hand out pills and sympathy for ills, both real and imagined; who for thirty-two years has given faithful service to Alabama College.

The COLLEGE

A montage of the college: The rambling halls of Main, topped by Buzzard—Ramsay and the laundry whistle—Hanson, home of harassed Juniors—King Tut, with Otis the Elusive Elevator—the infirmary graced by Peter the Cat—Palmer stage, scene of everything from Crook Court to symphony concerts—the sounds of Calkins and smells of Blach—the tower by moonlight, or sunlight, or pouring water down on unsuspecting heads—"Those who've pushed us along, pulled us along, and gone along with us"—the faculty and administration.

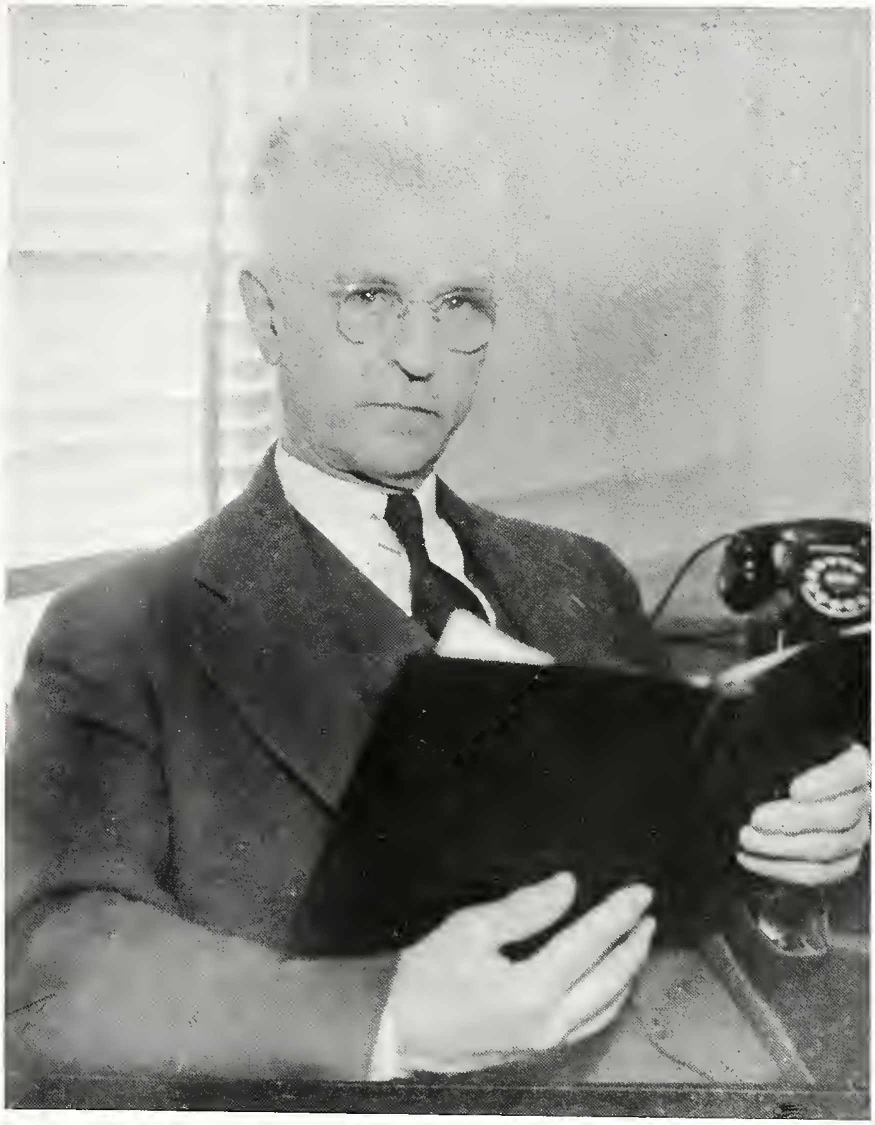
THE GOVERNOR

The year 1947 marked two outstanding events in Alabama education and politics: the beginning of Alabama College's second half-century of life, and the accession to office of Governor James E. Folsom.

Making his first appearance on our campus during the Fiftieth Anniversary celebration, Governor Folsom has since then displayed a wide interest not only in Alabama College but in education throughout the state.



THE PRESIDENT

The name of Dr. Harman brings to mind many things: an Alabama educator for half a century; a leader of Alabama College for twelve years; a thoughtful student of life, and, most outstanding, a lover of all things beautiful.

"I would rather be remembered for the row of oak trees near Comer Hall than for Comer itself, both of which were established during my term of office here," he told us.

Perhaps these sturdy oaks, more than anything else, symbolize Dr. Harman's years of fruitful service to the college. Alabama College can only say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

THE DEAN

Dean Napier: a courteous and friendly person, whether in his office or on Palmer stage; a psychology teacher of wisdom and humor; a magician who can make baffling schedule problems vanish; a counselor, wise and young-in-heart, who believes whole-heartedly in the students of Alabama College. His confidence in the students' ability to come through difficult tasks is equaled only by our gratitude to him for serving so splendidly as Dean.

THE BUSINESS MANAGER

Just rounding out his first year at the college, Mr. Fowler has already shown himself equal to anything from handling the bewildering figures of the college budget to facing the disconcerting flash of Harrell's camera. Besides steering college finances through the year, Mr. Fowler found time to listen to student business managers' woes and to help straighten out the tangles that student publications' budgets fall heir to. Our appreciation goes to him for becoming so readily a part of college life.

I haven't cracked a book . . . what did you make . . . see you next September . . . caps and gowns, speeches and diplomas.

THE MEN

(Bless 'em!)

It says in the catalogue, "Alabama College for WOMEN," but this year A. C.'s gates swung open to men students too. After half a century of echoes of female voices, the air suddenly vibrated with intones of handsome bass and baritone bellows. Back in September both boys and girls were a bit befuddled by the turn of events, but in due time (about two days, that is), the forty "Coeds" knew and were known by each and every girl on the campus.

Besides going all out for College Night—they furnished two cheerleaders thereto—the ingenious vets whipped up a man-sized tea—and every last one of them came dressed as "what the tea-attired A. C. GIRL will wear this season." Clothes for said function ranged from what-no-woman-would-claim-as-a-dress to some very slinky outfits. The walls of Reynolds Hall will never witness a more successful event!

The class of 1947: veterans of the days of two well-sharpened pencils, library lectures and designated places.

For the four-year-old freshmen, the excitement of the first plunge downward into the unknown abyss of the fire escape has mellowed into deep-rooted dread of dashing pajama-clad to the nearest exit at the sound of the siren. Nightly bouts with History of Civilization have given way to daily treks to the high school. V-mail from Germany and Okinawa has become fat letters from the University and Auburn; scared high school graduates have become sort-of-scared college graduates.

They've learned the ropes os Freshmen and aired their knowledge as Sophomores. As Juniors they've matched wits with the Seniors, then become—by the hardest—Seniors themselves, ond, finally and unbelievably—Graduates!

Under the scrutiny of Housemother Kemp, Hanson Hall has weathered another year of Juniors. With an early scrimmage for a preview of Spring-ing attractions, i.e., THE WEEK, the Juniors made off with the Crook—only to have the rightful proprietors' nocturnal dirge-chanting remind them of things to come.

The '48-ers defrosted long enough for President Parsons to "mother" her fellow thespians through "The Goose Hangs High," the class play. Preparations for the Prom and College Night ran neck and neck—the former leading out under a full "Blue Moon" in February. In the spring, while the inhabitants of Tutwiler feasted at the Citizenship Day banquet, Juniors broke a tradition and nearly startled the Seniors witless by tidying up the rooms in the sacred dormitory.

Wishful thinking and crossed fingers key-noted Hanson's lobby on the most-important night of the "drawing," for, as usual, the Juniors outnumbered the rooms in Tutwiler. The lucky low numbers clicked their gleeful heels, then remembered that Tut was still many Seniorian chants and midnight marches away.

Between eager, inquiring Freshman childhood and mature Junior and Senior adulthood comes an adolescent period in college life, an in-between phase when the character thinks she knows it all (and almost has to, if she wants to pass psychology and lit)—the Sophomore year!

True to time-honored traditions, the Class of '49 set out in September with the avowed purpose of making their mark as upperclassmen and impressing indelibly each and every freshman. During Orientation Week the 49-ers dispensed advice and information to all comers—"If the head of the department doesn't know, ask a Sophomore"—then proceeded to take advantage of their divine opportunities of learning. In November the Sophs took time out to swing and sway at their "Serenade in Blue" hop and in March they trod the boards most successfully in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." Something new on second-year agenda consisted of the Sophomore Holiday in the spring and the most hilarious convocation program of the season.

Having weathered the bane of their existence, the Sophomore Tests, the about-to-be Juniors joyfully inspected Hanson's rooms and suddenly realized they had "two down and only two to go."

FRESHMAN COMMITTEE

DAREN EASTER, Chairman
Ruth McCullach, Dorothy Deane Wesson, Katherine Turner

The Freshman Class of '46-'47 made history from the very beginning by introducing for the first time—male students. The history-making spirit of the class was apparent again when, immediately after their arrival, they presented to President Harman a petition stating that they would be the best freshman class ever.

The FRESHMEN

In October they entertained the student body at a Hallowe'en party, complete with skeletons hanging from the ceiling and a ghost show. They displayed their dramatic ability in their class play "Set It In Tray," and later blossomed out in their new Spring formals to waltz and jitterbug at the class dance, which was centered around "Two Blue Orchids."

Casting their first votes in Spring elections and refraining from packing their suitcases until a whole two weeks before Spring vacation, the Frosh wound up their momentous first year and looked forward to next fall, when they would help orient what would surely be a much greener class than they ever were.

We Celebrate our
50th ANNIVERSARY

Fifty years of life for Alabama College was climaxed in October with a three-day Semi-Centennial Celebration, which, in size and impact, could be compared only with College Night. Alumnae and representatives from all over the country assembled on the campus for an elaborate program which included, in part, a commemoration program, a Glee Club concert and a pageant.

Perhaps the most outstanding event was the Fiftieth Anniversary Pageant, including in its cast fully three-fourths of the student body, and offering a kaleidoscopic view of the school's history, from the appearance of a ghost in King House in 1865, right up to the present.

COLLEGE NIGHT

the Purples

Determination, hard work, and an ample supply of baling wire paved the way to Purple Victory.

In the secrecy of Purple Cabinet meetings, the lightening bug characters of G. E. and Mazda were created and the possibilities of Marie Antoinette as a drama were realized. Intense scribbling by writers soon had the characters and situations down in black and white, while artists designed sets, and perspective was achieved by the staging crew and the baling wire. Baling wire formed the frames upon which yards and yards of cloth were sewn to make the gigantic flowers among which Mazda and her bug friends lived and loved; baling wire made the hoop over which Marie Antoinette's voluminous skirts were draped and also the frame on which her elaborate white cotton wig was built; baling wire held together the staging crew's masterpiece, Louis XVI's chandelier; baling wire formed the skeletons on which bug bodies were fashioned. Then the whole push, baling wire and all, was turned into a living, breathing creation, and "Bug-gin and Bug-gine" and "The Last Days of Marie Antoinette" were in their polished forms.

After the entire Purple side had put everything they had into the cheers and the songs—a hymn and a pep song about a baby star who played all night and slept all day—and the last flicker of the lightning bugs' tails had faded, the fateful moment was at hand. Then, there it was! The Purples! Cheers, applause, tears of happiness—Yea Purples! Yea College Night! Yea Baling Wire!

COLLEGE NIGHT

To quote the pet song of the Golds, "You Could Tell a Girl From the Gold Side," from the minute the gun sounded to begin the College Night scuffle. February of '47 saw girls—and boys—yelling "Yea Gold!" at pep meetings, working feverishly on signs—a horseshoe over Hanson and two sparkling beaverboard cheerleaders on Main balcony—lugging the faithful flats, and pausing every now and then to cross their fingers hopefully. Amid the smoke-filled secrecy and comparing of ideas which keynoted every Cabinet meeting were born the beginnings of "And He Shall Reign Forever," the drama, which told the story of Handel's Messiah, and of "Imaginary-ation," which carried a small pickaninny through "the greatest little midway in show business."

the Golds

". . . You could tell her by her manner . . ." as staging crews mixed glue and paint in the construction of a garret scene and a merry-go-round; writers pounded out scripts, and directors supervised tryouts for Handels, Lizas and circus barkers. Costumers ripped, stitched, and fitted, and musicians juggled sharps and flats to produce the slow song, a prayer of faith, and the pep song, based on the stunt's theme of imagination. Sleep became a thing of the past and ideas merged into realities through nightly song practices and rehearsals.

". . . Her spirit, pep, and such . . ." were the trademarks of the Golds on the big night, when with faith, hope, and a belief in fairies, the Golds pulled their production into a unified whole, ready to be presented. Cheering, led by Helen Hassler and Jean Easter, assisted by seven-year-old Skipper Lowery, Gold mascot, rocked the rafters. From first to last in the 29th Annual College Night, "You Could Tell a Girl From the Gold Side!"

CROOK

"And these sub-Freshmen shall be known as Zanies!" With the fateful words of the Seniors, the erstwhile Juniors dashed madly from Palmer and Crook Convocation to don ensembles pleasing to the discriminating eyes of the most exquisite and infallible. For the next three days the well-dressed Zaney modeled—besides the latest thing in brooms—no less than four colors, while the last word in coiffures was half pigtails, half sock-rolled curls.

WEEK

Between performing small tasks for the dignitories, sweeping the walk before Tut, forming broom arches, presenting a Latin play, a bathing beauty contest, a hat show and innumerable impromptu performances, and chanting "Pardon me for living, most honorable Senior Miss," Zanies snatched a few moments—namely at 5:00 A. M.—to search for the unordinary stick. While the omniscient ones perched on Tut terrace and watched in scorn, Zaney Marguerite Dean stumbled—literally—over the symbol of Seniordom in the vines near the field house. Once more captains of their souls, the future Seniors began eyeing future Juniors and grinning smugly at every mention of next year's Crook Week.

The COLLEGE THEATER

Staging crews operate from Scene Shop to Palmer and utter loud cries concerning "flats," "teaser," and "butterflies;" casts rehearse nightly and go about muttering lines; committees slap paint on posters, beg and borrow props, sound off with sound effects and mix make-up; lighting crews splice cords and experiment with "foots," "spots," and "borders," and finally comes that witching hour of 8:15, when the audience struggles through the high notes of "The Star Spangled Banner," the house lights dim—and the curtain goes up on a College Theatre play.

Editor Dillon. That beam indicates that the Alabamian has been put to bed!

The ALABAMIAN

Harrassed editor and staff spent a great deal of time attempting to appear cool, calm, and organized; lights burned bright and long in the room above the Tea House; 60,000 cups of coffee—without sugar—were consumed; the door limped on its hinges from the constant pushing of deadlines; complaints and commendations fell thick and fast. Printers' ink flowed freely; layout problems presented themselves readily; the business manager lost weight jumping from one side to the other balancing her books, and the Alabamian found its stormy way into our mail boxes eighteen times during '46-'47.

Joyce takes notes on the opinions of a group for her column, "They Say."

Because the advertising manager had an intriguing left eyebrow that brought in ads from all four corners, the Alabamian graduated this year to a six-page paper, having as its main objective the expressing of student opinion and the publicizing of campus activities. News articles, features such as "They Say," a student opinion poll on current issues, and the "Squirrel," a cartoon and limerick lamenting characteristic idiosyncrasies of faculty members, aided in achieving this purpose. Highlight of the year's issues—an April Fool number whose front page contained, among other features, an editorial strongly backing Gypsy Rose Lee or Molotov for college president.

ELITE
NIGHT

Elite Night, sponsored by the Montage, is a Fall highlight each year.

Through a maze of burned-out flash bulbs, frantic searches for lost pictures, alarming layout problems, hectic last-minute preparations for Elite Night, innumerable appointments to "snap" somebody, and hours of writing and rewriting, the '47 Montage threaded its way to press, leaving behind a trail of panting but joyful staff members. Montage writers, comparatively normal people back in September, 1946, soon became habitually furrow-browed and word-conscious as they wrestled with write-ups. Camerawoman Harrell acquired a severe case of appointment-itis from her constant engagements to click the shutter; Business Manager Korth became deluged with "Kindly Remits," which she kindly remitted, in between her trips over the country to rope in ads.

As the editor breathed down the staff's neck and the printers and engravers breathed down the editor's neck, the '47 Montage somehow emerged right-side-up and trotted happily off to press. Back home its creators uncrossed their eyes and crossed their fingers in the hope that they had completed a successful recording of life and times at A. C., '46-'47.

Outstanding among the events which bring students flocking to Palmer Hall are the concerts and lectures by visiting artists, authors and speakers.

Under the direction of Miss Katherine Farrah, chairman of the committee, the '46-'47 Artist and Lecture series included concerts by Jennie Tourel and Marian Hughes, lectures by Eve Curie and Maurice Hindus, and a Modern Dance program by the Weidman Dancers.

Glamour, talent, and good-looking evening dresses were all over the place in Palmer Hall one night last October when the curtain went up on the Montage's annual clambake, Elite Night.

Leading off was the presentation of the Senior Class's candidates for the Elite, nominated by petition for their abilities in various fields. After the student body had placed X's in the desired places on their ballots, forty beauties, elected from the four classes, glided from behind the black silhouettes which keynoted the stage set. Perched watchfully on the edge of the stage, the three judges—Mr. Edmond deCelle from Mobile, Dr. J. B. Smith from the Universtiy and Mr. J. R. Gardner from Birmingham—made notes, compared them, and efficiently reached a decision in selecting six main beauties and eight runners-up.

Came the job of photographing the lovelies and our photographer, Mr. Jimmy Wilson of Birmingham, arose to the occasion with a brand-new idea—that of using informal backgrounds for the portraits instead of the usual camera room shots with white feathers and plaster props. The A. C. intramural sports program volleyed for the '46-'47 serve with an extensive round of tenniquoits tournaments, culminating with a week-end at the field house for the finalists. Then, to the tune of "4:30, Rain or Shine," the volley ball twelves began rotating in quick succession, the dorm teams vieing for the VB Jug, which finally found its way to Ramsay Dormitory.

An extensive round robin of tennis tournaments with a large enrollment of contestants filled the November sports calendar. Schedules included a new category of matches, too, what with "Men's Singles," "Men's Doubles," and "Mixed Doubles." With Misses Deason and Lundquist activated into the scramble, the doubles emerged the longest enduring, and Judy Ellard and Alice Johnston sprinted over the finalists' net to congratulate Dorothy Wesley and Jerry

The '46 football season was the first in which the Angel Farm sported participants—surprise! The men vets rallied to the squall of the pigskin and lined up for informal but wholehearted scrimmages on the soccer field. The basketball racket received the same impetus when the vets, headed by Lorry Easter, and J. B. Land, contested the Fouling Faculty Five, Drs. Stabler, Douglas, Reinke, Hocd, and Mr. Forsythe. The Galloping GI's were cheered to victory by a predominantly feminine audience. In the dormitory tilts, Ramsay downed Tut by one point, the score being thirty-nine to thirty-eight at the end of a jet-propelled game.

The Fun Room housed the all-time-high ping pong tournament. Peggy Neff fought her way up through twenty-odd contestants and, after much aceing and slamming around, emerged victoress over Sadie Thompson and hastened to render first aid to the cross-eyed spectators.

April showers finally pattered out to permit Spring training to get under way. The dormitories ushered out a strong representation who busied themselves limbering up latent pitching and slugging talents. The tall, still-damp clover impaired baserunning at first, but ere long the four-leafers obligingly ducked their heads to make a well-beaten path from base to base.

Betwixt and between the tournaments, students flexed their muscles in classes of archery (before and after the nor'easter gales of March subsided), square dancing, golf, tennis, and swimming (trade marked by faintly purple lips in the late fall and early spring.) Physical Education instructress Lundquist brought new light—including the infra-light Dr. Peck applied to charley-horses—on the art of tumbling, with its forward rolls, backward rolls, leg wrestling, and flying angels (from the Angel Farm).

Hiking Chaperons contributed to the Something New Department with a handbook of suitable and well-lighted hiking areas. Plans are also being made for an all-student rumpus room, providng for bridge, dancing, ping pong, and billiards, the last named of which is receiving strong support from a select group of smashers and bankers-in-the-side-pocket!

Counting ballots and attendance slips, holding student body meetings, studying and revising the handbook—all these come under the jurisdiction of the Student Government Association. College Night, the reddest-letter day on anybody's calendar, is the prodigy of Student Government, which this year steered the school through the biggest Purple-Gold fray in history.

The scope of the Student Government Association is ever-widening to give a broader interpretation of democratic principle on a college campus.

JUNE MIDDLETON	Historian

Beta Lambda Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi played host to Dean Thomas McCracken, national president of Kappa Delta Pi, during his stay on the campus in the fall.

In the spring the first Kappa Delta Pi gift scholarship award was presented by this chapter to an Alabama College student planning to enter the teaching profession. These, with program meetings and initiations, comprised the year's activities.

KAPPA MU EPSILON

IS A SOCIETY OF MATH MAJORS AND MINORS

Transfinite numbers and Egyptian mathematics are weighty subjects to most people, but Kappa Mu Epsilonites tackle them in monthly meetings with nary a tremor. After chewing the fat about aforementioned topics, members of the group went social with a banquet in honor of the ten new members.

In the spring two delegates headed north to attend the national convention in Illinois, the first to be held since before the war.

Campus paint-dabbers and clay moulders, who make up the membership of Kappa Pi, this year conducted a study of recent accomplishments in their pet field—that of art. Through research and field trips to the University of Alabama and several high schools, the members worked toward increasing their knowledge of art.

LAMBDA SIGMA PI

RENDERS SERVICE TO THE CAMPUS

Every year at the Junior-Senior Banquet (somewhere between the fried chicken and the strawberry ice cream) Lambda Sigma Pi taps its prospective members, thereby recognizing ten or twelve incoming Seniors for leadership, personality, and service.

This year's group of L.S.P.'s went politically-minded and sponsored rip roaring campaign speeches during the spring elections. On the social side, Lambda Sigma Pi entertained the housemothers at a banquet and the women veterans at a pancake supper (pancakes flipped by members themselves) and assisted in giving a tea for high school guests.

Spanish as she is spoke (with a Southern accent) is the theme of Mu Delta Alpha, which endeavors to make the South-of-the-Border language useful for something other than passing Standard Test, Form L.

Members of the Club Espagnole this year got first-hand experience in using their si, si's when they entertained the seven exchange students from Latin America at a banquet and helped these students become acquainted with Alabama College.

OMICRON NU

DOES RESEARCH WORK IN HOME ECONOMICS

The trend of food costs, or Why Housewives Get Gray, was the subject of Omicron Nu's project this year. The Home Ec'ers based their study on food costs at the Home Management House during the last six years.

Besides carrying out this research program, the group also maintained its roster of professional speakers.

Members of Pi Delta Epsilon had the opportunity this year of sponsoring informal discussion hours with Mlle Eve Curie and Maurice Hindus, both noted journalists, during their visits to the campus. In addition to steering new members through the process of signing on the dotted line in initiation services, the journalistic group gave new campus officers a starting-out party.

PI KAPPA DELTA

IS AN HONOR SOCIETY IN DEBATE

The question: "Resolved: that labor should have a direct share in the management of industry." The debaters: nineteen students representing the four dormitories. The winners: Ramsay's participants. The occasion: the Intramural Discussion contest, offspring of Pi Kappa Delta.

By sponsoring the Intramural Discussion Pi Kappa Delta gives students an opportunity to brush up on what goes on in the world today as well as on the art of holding your own in a yackety-yackety contest.

Members of P. K. D. also participated in the Alabama Discussion Conference at the University of Alabama.

Doing the honors at their spring banquet this year, members of Sigma Alpha Chi entertained two guest speakers who discussed art in advertising and education.

To study the place of art in campus life (other than the Petty girl sketches on Comer's desks, that is) the arty group tripped to the University of Alabama to observe art methods there. Special job of the year was studying and revising the constitution.

SIGMA ALPHA SIGMA

RECOGNIZES EXCELLENCE IN SECRETARIAL SCIENCE

Sigma Alpha Sigma extended the glad hand to five new members this year. This was by way of being quite an honor to the incomers, as eligibility for S. A. S. means being able to beat out fifty or sixty words per minute on the typewriter, read your own shorthand after it gets cold, and make an accounting problem come out right.

Members of the club continue to carry out their main purpose of linking secretarial students with the professional world.

During the summer of '46, two representatives from A. C.'s Rho Chapter attended the national convention in Chicago. Zeta's money-making project of the year was selling magazine subscriptions. The group also handed out its annual award for the best poster heralding a College Theatre play.

RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

Nearly completed, Westminster House is open to all students and has already attracted campus-wide interest, particularly through Mr. LeBaron's "Chewing the Rag" sessions, held weekly at the House.

ALABAMA PLAYERS

HAS A THREE-FOLD PURPOSE

Alabama Players is a local three-ring-circle that admits as members those students who have shown interest and ability in dramatic productions. Students outstanding in staging, lighting, and all other phases of production are eligible, as well as those skilled in acting. The organization seeks not only to provide entertainment but to develop dramatic ability and an appreciation for dramatic literature.

Organized for the study of more effective methods of teaching the much-younger generation, the Association sent a representative to the national convention in Oklahoma.

ALUMNAE DAUGHTERS ASSOCIATION

WELCOMES VISITING ALUMNAE

The sixty-two members of the Alumnae Daughters Association comprise one of the newest and largest campus organizations. Composed of girls whose mothers attended Alabama College, the group acts as a coordinator between the college and its alumnae.

Better known as the "Granddaughters," members of the club served as guides during Founders' Day and College Night and have assisted on all occasions in making visiting alumnae feel at home.

CALKINS MUSIC CLUB

ENTERTAINS FOR MUSIC LOVERS

First on the list for Calkins Music Clubbers this year was an overnight Comp House party for freshman music majors. Later in the year members juggled coffee cups at receptions for visiting artists. In the spring, amid much writing, rewriting, and beating out of brains, the group drew up a very creditable constitution for Phi Alpha Mu, newly-organized honorary music society.

DIETETICS CLUB

STUDIES INSTITUTIONAL HOME ECONOMICS

Members of the Dietetics Club, who are concerned with the all-important question of food, provided during the year a series of guest speakers whose topics included service of food and table arrangement. Another phase of the club's study was a program of correspondence with graduates who were formerly Home Economics majors at Alabama College.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

STUDIES CURRENT PROBLEMS

A gang that's extending hands across the sea is the International Relations Club, which is acting as Mama, or at least guardian, to a Belgian school which it adopted last year. The internationally-minded ones contribute to the work of the school and correspond—in English and 101 French—with its students.

An offspring of the Carnegie Endowment for Peace, International Relations Club members this year swapped words and ideas on such subjects as foreign trade, England, China, and Russia, in working toward a better understanding of world events.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE PLAYERS

ASSIST WITH THE DRAMA FESTIVAL

National Collegiate Players' annual "time to shine" comes when the Drama Festival is presented on the campus in the early spring. Planning, organizing, and entertaining guests are all jobs performed by N.C.P.'ers during the festivol. This year's blowout marked the sixth anniversary of the event.

Some characters who toot their own horns (scrape their own strings and clash their own cymbals, as well) with successful results are the members of the college orchestra. Sounding their A's early in the fall, the music-makers got going with Henry Hadley's "New Earth" Symphony, presented during the Fiftieth Anniversary. At Christmas the band played on with the "Christmas Concerto," joined the Glee Club in "The Messiah," and finished with the "Unfinished."

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLUB

PROVIDES A VARIED PROGRAM FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION MAJORS

Boasting one of the largest memberships in its history, the Physical Education Club also knocked itself out with one of the busiest programs going. Opening fire with a howdy-do camping trip for freshmen, the protegees of Bibb Graves Hall let go with their annual hay ride for alumnae of the department and a formal banquet featuring Dr. T. F. Schwartz, as guest speaker. Still going strong, the senior contingent sipped coffee at a tea honoring Dr. C. H. McCloy of the University of Iowa and Miss Jessie R. Garrison, State Supervisor of Health and Physical Education.

High spot on the Sec Club's calendar this year was a spring banquet.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

KEEPS MEMBERS INFORMED ABOUT SOCIAL WORK

When senior sociology majors returned from the reform school last fall (all in a sociologist's day's work) they recounted their adventures to their sis-majors at meetings of the Sociology Club. Other gatherings found this bunch bending an ear to out-of-town lecturers in the field of social work.

OUR TREASURED LANDMARKS
will Endure

Long after war has ceased they will stand as beacons to the American Way . . . to greater achievement in religion, arts, science, research, and industry. The way is not easy. It is narrow. It is sometimes rough. Other paths beckon alluringly, as seeming short cuts. But in mankind's halting progress through the ages many paths have been explored before. If now in uncertainty we change paths we will slow up progress and confuse those whose eyes are on us. By further smoothing of the proved paths we can continue to inspire earnest men everywhere to follow the way that already has led one nation so far toward the better and happier life for all.
